HERE pays respect to the Munsee Lenape ancestors past, present, and future. We acknowledge that the work of HERE is situated on the Lenape island of Manhattan (Mannahatta) and more broadly in Lenapehoking, the Lenape homeland.

Inspired by the words of Adrienne Wong: HERE acknowledges the legacy of colonization embedded within the technology, structures, and ways of thinking we use every day. This production is using equipment and high-speed internet, not available in many Indigenous communities. Even the technologies that are central to much of the art we make leave significant carbon footprints, contributing to changing climates that disproportionately affect Indigenous people worldwide. We invite you to join us in acknowledging all this, as well as our shared responsibility to make good of this time and for each of us to consider our roles in reconciliation, decolonization, and ally-ship.

JEANETTE OI-SUK YEW (Co-Creator) is a generative artist with a strong background in devising interdisciplinary and collaborative productions. She focuses on creating densely weaved performances that aim to offer alternative spectatorship that are not only interactive and immersive, but to engage audiences in a tactile conversation and reflection on our role in politics. Together with her successful background in theatrical designs and puppetry, these productions engage and challenge all senses physically and intellectually. The New York Times called her production, Act 4 of The Iceman Cometh with Target Margin, "consistently inventive." Furthermore, Are They Edible?, that used food and puppetry to ruminate on war, sacrifices, and our relationship with consumption was played to sold-out houses and was described as "bold and inventive." Jeanette received support from the Jim Henson Foundation, the Urban Artist Initiative, Artist Trust, Queens Council on the Arts, Puppeteers of America, Foundation for Contemporary Arts, and the NEA/TCG Career Development Program.
