Featuring original music and madness, HYPERFANTASIA is a transdisciplinary sci-fi fantasy drag cabaret that begins at the Big Bang and culminates in a vision of queer utopia. Hosted by Tiresias, the blind prophet of the Underworld, this miniature epic draws on new evolutionary theories and ancient queer wisdom to dismantle the survival-of-the-fittest paradigm in celebration of extravagance, impracticality, and camp.

EVAN SILVER/TIRESIAS is a hybrid writer, director, composer, and performer staging encounters across theatre, music, video, and the literary arts. Raised in the vibrant city of Chicago by a banjo-playing printmaker and an architect, Evan developed a passion for multimedia storytelling from an early age. Evan gravitates toward stories of journey and transformation, drawing on ancient and contemporary myths, tales, tropes and archetypes to fabulate new ways of being and becoming in the world. Evan is fascinated by birds, gods, strangers, and the living universe, and has written and directed fourteen original theatre productions on three continents. Evan is a Luce, Marshall, and Fulbright Scholar.

Tin Iso and the Dawn: Act I

Tristan Allen - Composer, Puppeteer, Creative Director
Jim Freeman - Technical Director, Builder

Note: This special performance will only take place on 10.27.

TRISTAN ALLEN – As a composer and performer of instrumental music, Tristan Allen's work is concerned with the storytelling potential of sound, puppetry, and fantasy. With a background in solo piano and electronic music, Tristan applies an experimental mode of composition to their work as a puppeteer. In addition to recorded output, Tristan has toured extensively across the globe and shared the stage with artists such as Amanda Palmer, Neil Gaiman, and Marina Abramovic. Tristan's ambitions to combine puppetry with musical works is ongoing. In collaboration with technical director and builder Jim Freeman, Tristan aims to build a fantasy world from scratch. This begins with a shadow puppet symphony named Tin Iso and the Dawn.
