Welcome!

Thank you for coming to Et Alia Theater's production of Stella, Come Home, a SubletSeries: Co-Op presentation. This program provides artists with discounted space and equipment, as well as technical support.

HERE also supports the work of artists at all stages in their careers through our HERE Artist Residency Program (HARP), which develops and produces the work of our 10 resident artists, and Visiting Artist presentations for adult and family audiences. Please check out our other performances and events at HERE.org.

Like all the work at HERE, this SubletSeries: Co-Op presentation was curated based on the strength and uniqueness of the artist's vision.

We hope to see you HERE again soon.

Best,

Kristin

A Streetcar Named Desire - Synopsis

A Streetcar Named Desire, by Tennessee Williams tells the story of Blanche DuBois, a woman who, having lost her home in Belle Reve, comes to New Orleans to stay with her sister, Stella and her husband, Stanley. It quickly becomes apparent that Stella's world is very different from what her sister expected, and Blanche is in constant conflict with Stanley, whom she finds rude, uneducated and disgusting. After a violent episode he has, Blanche urges Stella to leave him, but it is clear that Stella has no intention of doing so and that she will put up with anything he does. In return, Stanley warns Stella against her sister, telling her she is not who she claims to be and that her past is much dirtier than the version she tells people. When Blanche falls in love with Mitch, one of Stanley's friends, and hopes that he will be the one to marry and save her, Stanley tells Mitch all of Blanche's secrets. Therefore, Mitch leaves her and she becomes more and more unwanted in Stanley's household, despite Stella's efforts to make him go easy on her. He buys her a bus ticket and tells her he wants her gone, after which he abuses her. In the last scene, when Blanche has lost everything, she is taken away by doctors, delusional and consumed.

About the show

Stella, Come Home is a dance-theater piece that translates the iconic American play A Streetcar Named Desire, by Tennessee Williams, into movement and dance through the bodies of our company's international women. We feel urged to explore what it means to perform this pinnacle of white US theater as women immigrants in New York City, one of the most heterogeneous cities in the world. Just as a reality-stricken Blanche longs for a return to her imagined Belle Reve, we are outsiders going through the painful struggle of letting go of our past, while the promised land of NYC forces us to face our truth: culturally diverse women still have to fight to be heard.

Et Alia Theater is a NYC based theater company founded and led by international women. We bring together an unfamiliar combination of foreign and immigrant voices and offer them a space to explore and interchange their multicultural perspectives. We use our art to expose the obstacles experienced by immigrant women and empower our community. As a company who is committed to blurring borders, Et Alia is not limited to a single form of work and is open to creating conversations through different styles of theater. We strive to make the out of place, a place. Et Alia is Latin for 'And Other': we create art for the other, by the other, and about the other.

Federica Borlenghi (Prop/Costume Designer)

Federica Borlenghi is an Italian-born multidisciplinary artist mostly known for her Direction and Writing. # Tennessee Williams' biography

Tennessee Williams was born in 1911 in Columbus, Mississippi, where his grandfather was the Episcopal clergyman. When his father, a travelling salesman, moved with his family to St Louis some years later, both he and his sister found it impossible to settle down to city life. He entered college during the Depression and left after a couple of years to take a clerical job in a shoe company. He stayed there for two years, spending the evenings writing. He entered the University of Iowa in 1938 and completed his course, at the same time holding a large number of part-time jobs of great diversity. He received a Rockefeller fellowship in 1940 for his play BATTLE OF ANGELS, and he won the Pulitzer Prize in 1948 for A STREETCAR NAMED DESIRE and in 1955 for CAT ON A HOT TIN ROOF. Other plays include SUMMER AND SMOKE, THE ROSE TATTOO, CAMINO REAL, BABY DOLL, THE GLASS MENAGERIE, ORPHEUS DESCENDING, SUDDENLY LAST SUMMER, THE NIGHT OF THE IGUANA, SWEET BIRD OF YOUTH, and THE TWO-CHARACTER PLAY. Tennessee Williams died in 1983.

University of the South's biography

The University of the South, a national ranked liberal arts college and Episcopal seminary, is the beneficiary of the Tennessee Williams' estate, including the copyrights to all his works. This gift was made as a memorial to Williams' grandfather, the Reverend Walter E. Dakin, who studied at the University's seminary in 1895.

The Walter E. Dakin Memorial Fund is used to support the Sewanee Writers' Conference, the Sewanee Young Writers' Conference, and the School of Letters. The Fund also supports scholarships for students who wish to pursue creative writing and fellowships which are granted annually to budding playwrights or authors. Those fellows include Ann Patchett, Claire Messud, Tony Early, and Mark Richard. The Tennessee Williams Center houses the University's theater department, and a portion of the Fund supports the department and its theatrical productions.
